ONE SUSPECT DYING.

Police Get Tip of Negro With Red-Stained Shirt Fleeing
Along Aqueduct.

(Special to The Evening World.)

WHITE PLAINS, April 11.—Another posse of deputy sheriffs and aqueduct police started out today on horseback and in automobiles to search the entire section along the Croton aqueduct and around the Croton reservoir in Westchester County for a wounded negro who is believed to have been with George Williams when Station Agent Charles H. Conklin was murdered at Croton Lake station last Saturday night.

The authorities received a mysterious tip that a negro with a red-stained shirt was seen last night walking along the edge of the reservoir in the direction of one of the camps of workmen who are constructing the aqueduct. More than eight thousand men are now employed along the watershed section.

Williams, who was shot by the station agent, is dying of pneumonia. Several times, it was believed, he was about to make a confession, but all Sheriff Scherper could get from him was that he saw two strange negroes enter the station, heard several shots fired and ran to the ticket office, only to receive a bullet wound in his chest.

In his delirium he has gone through various motions as though trying to ward off blows and it is believed the scene of the murder was passing through his mind.

The police are going to make a clean-up among the workmen in the different camps by confiscating all knives and guns.

The farmers in the northern part of Westchester County are so much incensed over the murder, and their wives so frightened, that they are laying in a stock of weapons and other firearms. They say they will shoot suspicious persons on sight.

WALL STREET.

This morning's early stock market was strictly a pre-holiday affair. Business was reduced to a minimum. Price changes in standard securities, while generally upward, were trifling. Speculatives were the only stocks which displayed any animation worthy of note. A number of these issues, particularly American Cotton Oil, Virginia-Carolina Chemical and Agricultural Chemical, were exceedingly weak. Cotton oil led with a loss of 2 points.

The market didn't evince any improvement after the first hour.

The list bent downward during the greater part of the afternoon until near the close when a rally lifted prices fractions above the bottom. Net changes were confined to fractions. Reading, Union and Northern Pacific, American Cotton Oil and Steel were the heaviest losers.

Trading was a little more spirited at the end.

The Closing Prices.
